In collaboration with Madman Entertainment and NTV Films, The Japan Foundation, Sydney is pleased to host the 2013 Evangelion Art Exhibition from Friday 10 to Saturday 18 May at the Japan Foundation Gallery. This exhibition will offer a rare glimpse into the renowned Evangelion franchise.

In the exhibition, a collection of original concept and production art, character drawings and key artefacts will be on display, offering an insider's view into Japanese anime film production. A limited selection of exclusive merchandise will also be available.

In conjunction with the exhibition, the Japan Foundation is excited to welcome guest Yuko Miyamura, an anime voice actress best known for her role as Asuka in the Evangelion series, for "Meet the voice of Asuka", a one-day event program featuring a Q+A session and a voice acting workshop on Saturday, 11 May.

The Q+A session with Miyamura will be facilitated by Ryan Huff, Geek of Oz editor and resident anime writer for JB Hi-Fi's STACK Magazine, and will be followed by a short signing opportunity. The voice acting workshop will give participants an insight into what happens behind the scenes of an anime production, touching on everything from breathing techniques to acting and synching with actual video images from Evangelion. As places are limited, participants will be selected in advance by Miyamura-san herself through an online audition process.

"Voice actress extraordinaire Yuko Miyamura has worked on some of the best known anime properties such as Astro Boy, Pokémon and the incredible Neon Genesis Evangelion. The Melbourne-based superstar literally bridges the cultural gap between Japan and Australia, bringing with her a wealth of experience that she plans to share with Evangelion fans in Australia," says Huff.

2013 Evangelion Art Exhibition is showing now at The Arts Centre Gold Coast (17 April – 5 May) and in Melbourne's No Gallery (28 May – 9 June).

ABOUT YUKO MIYAMURA

In addition to being a very talented voice actress, she is an actress, J-pop singer and director of audiography. Her acting roles include the presenter in Battle Royale, voice roles in gaming include Chun Li and Rose in the Street Fighter Alpha and EX series, Larxene in the Kingdom Hearts series, and many more. She has provided the voices for so many characters in anime series, such as Kazuha Toyama in Detective Conan, Alyssa Sears in My-Hime and Casca in Berserk, and she is incredibly popular for her role as being the voice of Asuka in the Evangelion series

ABOUT RYAN HUFF

From a very young age, Ryan has had an interest in pop culture, specifically Japanese pop culture. His earliest memories are of watching Astro Boy, Marine Boy and Monkey on TV. While as a young geeking he may not have realised that these things were Japanese, he always knew that they had something in common – they were awesome. As he grew, so did his love of all things Japanese until, as a young and impressionable teen he was exposed to Neon Genesis Evangelion through SBS. After recording each episode on VHS (kids, ask your parents), he would break his brain trying to understand Evangelion's religious and philosophical allusions as well as its abundance of Freudian psychoanalysis. Nowadays Ryan is the geek behind GeekOfOz.com and is the resident anime guy for JB Hi-Fi's STACK magazine.
